

Aurora 10 Year Reunion

Walking back onto the grounds of the school that I spent 12 years at after 10 years stirred up a mix of feelings. Everything had changed, yet there was still an underlying feeling of the familiar.

Like all of us, Aurora has changed a lot in the 10 years since we left. A new name, new owners, new school uniform, new buildings, and a whole new atmosphere. It was strange to feel like a stranger in the school that I spent 12 years calling home.

Though, while so much had changed there was still some familiar. Walking through the grounds with my fellow alumni brought back many memories. There are still a few remnants of the famous rocks, Jupiter and Saturn feel the same (with some new additions) and the rows of desks set up in the hall brought back memories of exam time.

Catching up with old friends and seeing what everyone is up to was lots of fun. It's amazing how much can happen in 10 years. It also made me feel grateful that so many of my school friends remain being my closest friends today. Sharing a history packed with so many great memories makes our friendship so much stronger, and gives us a reason to cherish what we have. Here's to the next 10 years! Where the class of Aurora 2008 can keep on doing great things!
